“ My name is Tony and I have been blessed to know Angela for approx. 6 yrs..I personally assumed the role of her boyfriend, (but at times she begged to differ.) I want everyone to know that Angela indeed had a heart of gold, she loved all living thing's and would stand up and fend for any person or animal in a heartbeat! She has always been the type you absolutely couldn't help but trust, admire and love with all your heart.Due to my personal upbringing I am guilty of accusing her of being naive, gullable and vulnerable but nothing could stop her heart and thoughts and way's that Jesus would want us all to be and do. She was and still is an angel and I have absolutely no doubt she is warm, happy and comforted in the arms of the Lord. I cannot help but to honestly say from my heart that she was in fact too good for me, a true blessing to me to have even met her and befriended her , I have never encountered such a truly beautiful,warm and loving woman in my life, she was and will always be loved in my heart and I dearly pray to God that we will again be together just as we were always's. God bless our Angela.

“ I met Angela in 2004. She was smiling that big smile and came right up to me and introduced herself. Ever since that day, anytime we were in the same room she would come bouncing up with that 'full of life' smile and hug me and we would laugh and talk about almost everything! I work at Park Center and we would serve lunch for our members each day. Every day , without fail, Angela would come directly into the kitchen, she wouldn't touch a bite of foodshe would go right over to the sink and start washing dishes. She would tell me about her latest adventures, or just laughing about life in general. Angela would wash, wash and wash some more.....never complained, she just liked being around people and staying busy! I have so many fond memories of her. And the common thread in them all was that infectious smile and energy she brought. I will miss being able to see that and hear her laughter. She was a bright light for a lot of lives and will truly be missed.
