“ Not every relationship is close and that's okay. My Aunt Lois wasn't someone I saw every day or even every year, but she still left an impression that stayed with me. Some people shine quietly in the background of your life, and when they're gone, you realise how much they mattered.

We didn't always talk much, but when we did, she had a way of making me feel like what I said mattered. She remembered things I didn't expect her to remember. And when I think back now, those small interactions meant more than I knew at the time. Aunt Lois you will be missed but not forgotten. Love always your nephew Shawn
