“ It's been years and I still haven't let your memory fade. I place flowers on your grave when I'm in town, last time they were a beautiful purple with some yellows and whites. Purple was always your favorite color. I have complete faith that I'll see you again and that you'll be in heaven. I'm quite thankful you don't have to see the world as it is now, your big heart wouldn't have been able to handle it. I love you, forever. I hope to be the kind of mother you were but you were better than I'll ever be able to accomplish.

“ More months has passed and of course you're still on my mind. No matter what happens I will never let your memory die. Christmas is coming up and I'm decorating the house. Everything I do I step back and think what you would think of it or what you would change about it. You really were the best at decorating. You always made Christmas so special so in turn I want to pass that on to the girls and give them a special Christmas every year. I've been watching Christmas movies for the past two days and people think its bizarre that I already have a tree up but I remember one year you put our tree up as soon as Halloween was over. Next year I plan to use the tree you picked out for us as a kid, dad offered to give it to me. I'm going to send some poinsettias for your grave too. This is your time of year 💕 I love you, endlessly. A bushel and a peck and a hug around the neck 💕

“ Another year has passed and I still hold on to your memory as strongly as I can. I talk about you to my children, I had another girl! You would love her. She's really tan and quiet but happy. She's a lot like you in that way. No matter how old I am I will never lose the love I have for you and no one can ever come to take your place. Who can replace a momma like you. Forever until I meet you in paradise. A bushel and a peck and a hug around the neck XOXO

“ My heart breaks everyday. I know you're in a better place but you are so missed. I often wonder how different everyone's lives would be if you were still with us today. There isnt a day that goes by that I dont think of you. What a special person you were to me and I hold our memories together very close to my heart. Thank you for the impact you had on my life. Thank you for stepping up and being a mother to us 3 when you didnt have to be, that takes a very special person. I love you with all of my heart, and I will miss you forever. A bushel and a peck, and a hug around the neck! To the moon and back!

“ A new year has begun and as always, you are still in my heart and my thoughts. I'm at work waiting for my shift to start...it's been really cold and snowy today and walking down the hill it almost reminded me of Christmas as odd as it sounds and I thought of how you loved the holidays. The cemetery has a thin layer of snow over it but I find comfort in knowing you're up in heaven warm and happy with our God ❤️ maybe it's strange that I still post on here but it gives me comfort. I don't want to let your memory die. Even when I'm 90 I'll still be thinking of you and wondering what life would be like if you were physically here. I was sitting on the porch singing the other day, just enjoying the few moments of sun we have in this crazy weather and two red birds came to the tree in front of me. A boy and a girl. I know how much you love red birds and how much your mom and dad did, it would give you comfort and I always found it strange but now I'm the one who gets comfort from it. I love you always and forever with a bushel and a peck and a hug around the neck. Rest easy Trish ❤️❤️🤔

“ It's a few days shy of Christmas again and as always, you're on my mind. Life has a way of catching up to us...I know the Bible says the dead know nothing but that is a very sad thought to me. I'd like to think you're in heaven smiling down but it makes sense that you wouldn't know what's going on in this world since you became an Angel, paradise wouldn't be paradise if you had to worry about what happens to your loved ones. I hope you know, I'll never forget you. It's been a while and it still hurts just as bad now that you aren't here. I love you ❤️❤️❤️ Always mamma. Sometimes when I feel lost I wish I could just go and talk to you. Even for just 5 minutes. Merry Christmas in heaven 🙏🕊️🎄👤🎁

“ It's Christmas time and I can't help but feel a little empty because you are not here. Since God took you our family isn't a family anymore. You were what held us together. The only things that brings me comfort is the memories of you. Right now you would be sorting through your Christmas decorations, hanging lights and mistletoes, putting out poinsettias, wrapping Christmas gifts, listening to Christmas music. You always made every holiday the best. You were there for me since I was 3. You were the only mom I've ever known. I wish you could have met my baby, she would have adored you. No one could ever hold a candle up to you. You can't ever be replaced. I'm sure heaven is a much brighter place with you there. I love you. Always thinking of you.

To Tiffany and Tina: I always remember your mom with a smile on her face. Even during the hard times. I know your hearts are breaking now, but she is free from her pain and is with Mrs. Mildred. I love you both. We all grew up as family at Campground Methodist Church. Those days will never be forgotten. I know you have had a rough couple of months, but with God, you will get through it. Please let me know know if I can do anything. "Rest in Peace Ms. Pat; We all loved you!"
